

ABSTRACT

An electronic apparatus is adapted to execute an operation using an application, and is provided with an communicating part for communicating with an external apparatus via a communication line, and a controlling part for executing an operation using an application within the external apparatus by communicating with the external apparatus by the communicating part.

10

15

20

25